

Increased Cost of Compliance

Your Flood Insurance Policy Can Help You Rebuild.

Have you suffered major flood damage?

You may be required by your community to elevate, demolish, relocate, or floodproof (non-residential only) your damaged structure when you rebuild. Local building codes and floodplain ordinances that comply with the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) regulations set the guidelines for how and where you may rebuild.

Do you need money to rebuild, remove, or relocate your damaged building? Bringing your flooded building “up to code” can be costly. The NFIP’s Increased Cost of Compliance (ICC) coverage in your flood insurance policy can provide up to $30,000 to pay for flood protection measures that meet NFIP standards.

Ask your local floodplain administrator about the NFIP’s ICC coverage.

Your floodplain administrator can tell you whether you are eligible to file an ICC claim. Eligibility is related to how often and how badly you’ve been flooded.

Ask your insurance agent about ICC coverage. Conforming to local codes and floodplain ordinances saves lives, personal property, and money. ICC can help.
